

Puget Sound Writing Consortium Summer 2019

Summer Reading and Writing Institute for Social Studies and Language Arts

August 5-9, 8:30-3:30,

St. Anne's School, (101 W. Lee, Seattle)

Student Fees: $400

Plus: (optional) 30 clock hours ($65) or 3 SPU credits ($165)

In this institute participants explore social studies and language arts in an integrated, thematic approach. The class addresses reading and writing for argument through guiding questions, as well as reading and writing narrative and poetry. Teachers will leave with inquiry and discussion skills to take to the classroom. Instructional strategies are in line with best practices for inquiry learning and the Common Core standards.

This Institute has been one of the most successful summer classes for over twenty years. It is hands-on and practical. Open to all who teach.

Instructors: Kim Norton and Doug Selwyn, longtime PSWP UW instructors, teachers, writers, and Puget Sound Writing members.

Doug Selwyn is the author of many books on teaching; his most recent book is All Children are Our Children. Doug taught in Seattle Public Schools for 14 years and has taught teachers at the university level for many years.

Kim Norton, veteran teacher, with experience in a wide variety of venues at multiple grade levels. She is a poet from Lopez Island; her poetry is anthologized in How to Save the World.

For further information about the class, contact:

Doug - 206.679.0189

Kim - 360.713.4744

Register: download application at pugetsoundwriting.org